How To Bid In This Auction

In Person: Plan to attend the National Olympin Collector's Club Convention. In addition to the exhibits, dealers, and meeting other collectors you can inspect the auction lots in person. The auction will take place Saturday afternoon, February 17th in the White Face Room.

By Mail: You may participate by bidding in advance of the auction. Determine which lots you wish to bid on and the HIGHEST PRICE you are willing to pay. The auction firm will bid on your behalf in competitive bidding to obtain each lot AT THE LOWEST PRICE up to the maximum price you specify. Ninety percent of winning lots in our auctions are at a price less than what the mail bidder has specified.

MAIL BIDS EARLY! Do not mail bids to Lake Placid (and no telephone calls accepted in Lake Placid). Mail to only one address:

CAL
P. O. Box 2207
Danbury, CT 06813

Your bids must be received prior to 12 noon Thursday, February 15th.

By Phone: You may call in your bids (call 203 798-1100) from 9 am to 4 pm or leave on recording machine anytime. All phone bids must be before Wednesday, February 14th at 4 pm. All phone bids must be confirmed in writing.

790. Olympic Shield of Athletic Sports Plaque, 1927-32; 18-inch (46.0cm) copper galvano bronzed uniface. By R. Tait McKenzie, sc. Representing track & field sports of the modern Olympics, this fantastic work of art required five years to create—in time for the Los Angeles Olympiad of 1932—by a famed artist who was also a surgeon, an anatomist, a physical educator, an artist and a sculptor! It contains one of the largest number of human forms ever represnted on a medallic work: 90 male figures and one female!

In the center is shown the Spirit of Olympia (the lone female!); her outstretched hands are bringing together two athletes representative of the modern Olympic revival, who shake hands in friendly spirit. Immediately encircling this high relief center section are panels depicting field events: throwing the hammer, casting the javelin, the pole vault, the high jump, putting the shot and scaling the discus, while below are a group of hurdlers in full flight.

Four small octagonal panels contain figures of a broad jumper, an athlete crouching for the standing high jump, and two athletes prepareing for competion break the continuity of the border surrounding this panel, a border contains lettering above and below, which reads: Mens Fervida In Corpre Lacertoso (an eager mind in a lithe body); above are three words, the Olympic motto: Fortis (stronger), Alitius (higher) and Citius (swifter).

Above the central panel is a winged figure. Surrounding the lettered and enriched border is a frieze of runners. In this frieze are 60 timeless runners, showing every phase of the stride, as well as the starting positions and the finish of the race. Artist McKenzie studied famous athletes to depict the peculiarities of stride and style shown by these figures.

The present piece is prepared for mounting on a wall. It has a bronze patina finish which highlights the complex but amazingly clear design. Ideal for the wall of a den or office of the collector or Olympic official. Includes a flannel sack for protection. Near mint. $1,000-1,200

791. Similar. Olympic Shield of Athletic Sports Plaque, 1927-32; 8 1/4-inch (21.2cm) copper galvano bronzed uniface. By R. Tait McKenzie, sc. The same elaborate Olympic design in a smaller size plaque. Includes 3 lugs on rev for mounting on a flat surface. Near mint. $450-500

792. Similar. Olympic Shield of Athletic Sports Medal, 1927-32; 2 1/2-inch (63.4mm) bronze uniface. Amazingly this masterful design can be reduced to a moderate size medal! No loss of the charm of all the detail. This will be one of your most prized Olympic items in your collection. Brown patina finish. Box. Mint. $45-50

793. Bill Mallon and Ian Buchanan, Quest for Gold, the Encyclopedia of American Olympians, 1984; NY, 496 pages. Biographies of all U.S. athletes plus US Olympic records. Paper. VF $20-25

797. Littlehammer Norway, 1986; 160 pages. Bid book as candidate to host the 1992 Olympic winter games. In English & French. In this we believe. Color illustrated. Text in blue & red. White cloth & dust jacket. Fine. $250-300

Our Catalog Entries Explained

We pack a lot of information into a few lines in our catalog entries. We do this to save our reader's time and to provide the maximum usefulness in reading the catalog. Perhaps, however, an explanation of the components of an entry can aid the reader in rapidly gleaning the information he or she wants. First we do not give a history of the piece nor do we attempt to describe each lot. Our goal is to identify—in as few words as possible—the item or items in each lot, and to distinguish them from all other metal objects in the world. We seek to give the reader the necessary information needed for making an accurate evaluation.

Below you will find an actual listing (for a Statue of Liberty medal) and an artificial one to illustrate most the components that can make a catalog entry.

(A) Headline. This is generally the name of a topic at the beginning of a run of lots under that topic; but headlines are also used to highlight important lots that warrant special attention.

(B) Lot number. Run numerically in the catalog. This is the sequence the lots are called in the auction. Bid by this lot number. If it contains more than one item, it is all the items in the lot (no lots broken up).

(C) Sub-Head or Ear. (Sorry, that's a newspaper term meaning a headline in the upper left corner above a story.) The ear is always within parenthesis and often is a standard reference number, but may also be another topic, an unusual recipient, or any data to flag your attention.

(D) Name of item. We name every item; we use the short common name if the item is know by several names. This always appears in bold type.

(E) Type of item. The last word in the name is the type of item (as: medal, plaquette, charm, plate, watchfob, paperweight--any of perhaps a hundred types of items).

(F) Date. Usually the date the item was issued, or date it bears (or date it was created). If not apparent and we cannot determine it by research we will give a circa estimate (to the nearest decade or century).

(A) STATUE OF LIBERTY

(B) 18. (C) (Relic) (D) Monument of American Independence (E) Medal, (F) 1876; (G) 2-inch (50.7mm) (H) bronze. (I) By Ernest Paulin Tasse, (J) engr. (K) Obv Statue of Liberty on distinctive straight-sided pedestal on Bedloe's Island, Fort Wood around base (actually placed 1886 on very different pedestal), city behind, (L) no bridges! (M) Rev statue to recall US—French friendship, raised by public subscription amongst the citizens of (N) booth (sic) nations, 1776-1876. (O) Struck by Paris Mint (P) from original metal taken from Bartholdi's studio. (Q) Bee edgemark of 1860-79. (R) (Gabriel GO-1). (S) Seldom seen early Statue of Liberty Medal. (T) Uneven deep red patina. (U) A VF specimen sold for $220 in our Nov 82 sale (lot 3).
(V) EF-AU. . . . . .(W) $250-300

(B) 19. (X) Same. Monument of American Independence Medal, 1876; 2-inch (50.7mm) (Y) .900 silver (Z) octagon (AA) uniface. Same design as previous. (BB) Coin turn. (CC) Issued by the American Committee. (DD) Serial #1776. (EE) Coin finish. VF. (FF) 50.4 grams. xxxxxx

(G) Size. Given in two measurements: inches and metric. If circular one dimension is given; if other than round, two dimension are given--height is always first, by width.

(H) Composition. What is it made of? The major metallic component or other composition.

(I) Name of artist or creator. Determined from signatures or from historical research. Two names given if work of more than one artist.

(J) Type of artist. Some abbreviations employed here: engraver (engr), designer (des), delineator (del), modeller (mod), caster (cast), sculptor (sc). Basically engr means that item was struck from hand engraved dies; sc means it was modelled oversize, pantographically reduced and dies cut by machine.

(K) Obverse identification. What appears on the obverse following the word obv. We do not copy legends but identify meaning and occasion for the item's issuance.

(L) Background. Perhaps how it differs from other objects or varieties.

(M) Reverse identification. What appears on the reverse following the word rev.

(N) Errors identified. Should any be present.

(O) Maker. Name of mint, foundry, medallic firm or factory that made the object; often preceded with struck by or cast by

(P) Special numismatic status. Notation of some unusual status (as relic, broken die, box medal, chronogram, overstruck planchet or whatever)

(Q) Edgemarking. Identification of maker, hallmarks, fineness, mintmarks, mottos, or any lettering located on the edge.

(R) References. Usually the most obvious reference work to further identify the item; reference works are generally the standard for that field. Over 400 such reference works are utilized. If the reference is unfamiliar to you call or write and we will identify it for you.

(S) Further data. Useful line or two for further explanation.

(T) Patina. The patina or finish of the metal object; often the color and kind of patina.

(U) Previous auction sales. Infrequently given to guide current evaluation.

(V) Condition. Standard abbreviations from numismatics are used: brilliant uncirculated (BU), uncirculated (unc), almost uncirculated (AU), extremely fine (EF), very fine (VF), Fine (F), very good (VG), good (G) Medallic items do not circulate and do not wear like coins but their condition from handling is similar to numismatic grading conditions.

(W) .Estimate. Our current estimate of value, our professional opinion of market value at time of sale. We try to be as accurate in this estimate as possible, neither too low (like many auction houses who invariably sell at over estimate; nor inflated estimates to make the material appear more valuable than it is). A range is given; lot may sell at any price, below, within or above this range.

(X) Related lot. Tied to the lot proceeding, indicated by Same or Similar. Often the same design, but may be different size or composition. Similar means perhaps a different variety.

(Y) Fineness. When known this is given as part of the composition (by law precious metals must be identified by fineness since 1904 in Great Britain, since 1906 in America).

(Z) Shape. Any shape other than round is noted. If no mention of shape is give, assume the item is round.

(AA) Number of sides. Assume the item has two sides, if only one side we state uniface.

(BB) Orientation. All items are metal turn (top of obverse is top of reverse). If otherwise it will be noted; coin turn means top of obv is bottom of rev (like a coin).

(CC) Issuer. The publisher, sponsor or seller of the item.

(DD) Serial number. If the item bears a serial number this is so indicated.

(EE) Coin finish. No finish, as it comes from the coining press; unfinished; no attempt to patina or color the object.

(FF) Weight. If precious metal, the weight is given in grams or troy ounces.
